ROCKPORT CONCERT

Artist Students of Curtis Institute To Be Heard Wednesday Night

Next Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock standard, a concert is to be given for the benefit of the Rockport Methodist Church at the Rockport town hall, featuring artist-students of the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, Tibor de Machula, cellist, William Harris, pianist, and Josef Levine, pianist, in collaboration with Mr. de Machula. Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, who founded and endowed the Institute, together with Josef Hofmann, world famed pianist and director at the Institute, will be present.

Tibor de Machula is a student under the eminent cellist Felix Salmond. Mr. Harris was with Abrams Chasins, the brilliant young pianist and composer, and Mr. Levine a student with Mr. Hofmann personally. While all three artists are accomplished musicians, possibly the name of Mr. Levine is the most familiar, as he has already attracted widespread attention by his brilliant art. Several of the critics concede that he is one of the most promising young pianists of today.

The program arranged by Mr. Hofmann hints at the wonderful musical treat in store for those who attend: Chaconne Mr. Harris Bach-Busoni Concerto D major Haydn Allegro non troppo Chopin Allegro Chopin

Waltz A flat (Mr. Levine at the piano) Chopin Nocturne C sharp minor Chopin Etude C minor Chopin Russian Fantasy Mr. Harris Tchaikovsky Mr. de Machula Mr. Levine

The concert is being given under the auspices of the Johnson Society, the admission fee being only nominal, to make it possible for everyone interested to attend. Anyone desiring further information may call Mrs. Everett Libby, Rockport or Mrs. Gladys Morgan, Rockland.

ELECTION ECHOES

Maine Had Many "Missouri-ans" Monday—Two Measures Defeated

Nine of Maine's 16 counties and 12 of its 20 cities voted Monday in favor of power export, but they were unable to offset the opposition shown by the rural communities, and the number of years has been the sum not large, but large enough to be decisive. With only a few small precincts missing, the vote on the several referendum questions was:

Export—Yes: 64,727; No: 62,778.
Highways—Yes: 58,255; No: 42,894.
Gas Tax—Yes: 35,749; No: 77,324.
Council—Yes: 40,831; No: 23,070.
Bridge—Yes: 45,222; No: 30,124.

Coming in answer to the plea of Gov. Gardner and other administration leaders for an affirmative vote on all five of the referendum questions, the avalanche of nays, even on the two uncontested propositions for the Bucksport Bridge and Executive Council appointments was a distinct surprise, says the Press Herald.

This defeatist tendency was particularly pronounced in the early returns from small towns, many of which spurned both bond issue and gasoline tax proposals with similar majorities. Consistent as was the small town vote against the export measure, it was not altogether unexpected. The surprise came, however, when the cities failed materially to reverse the judgment of the rural sections.

Bangor followed the behest of Mayor John Wilson, rejecting the measure by 2,000 votes. Lewiston, scene of the recent industrial rejuvenation activities of the New England Public Service Company, was able to give the export bill a majority of only 300, while Auburn across the river said no with a majority of 800 votes. Bidford, Saco, Augusta and Bath returned majorities for the measure of considerable size, but in Portland, where the margin was expected to be counted by thousands, the vote went for export by less than 2,000 votes. Gardner, the Governor's home town, went against export by a slight majority.

Topsham, Representative Ellis A. Aldrich's town, failed to follow its leader in his support of the Smith-Carlton bill, going against export by about 20 votes.

The bond issue was victorious in all but five cities and all the counties but three, but its total majority was smaller than usually received by a proposal of this sort. The gasoline tax, however, failed to receive a favorable majority in a single city or county in the State.

MR. WYMAN'S STATEMENT

Walter S. Wyman, president of the Central Maine Power Co., said: "It is apparent that the Smith-Carlton Export Power Bill has failed to pass. I am exceedingly sorry for this as I sincerely believe it would have been a great help to the State of Maine. However we will go ahead and do our level best in every way that is possible to improve the industrial condition in the state. We have done this in the past and pledge ourselves to do it in the future."

WILL KEEP OPEN HOUSE

Opportunity Given Saturday Afternoon and Evening To Inspect Quarters of Thomaston National Bank

Thomaston National Bank will keep open house from 2 to 8 p. m. Saturday, and hundreds of visitors are expected from the wide territory served by this prosperous and enterprising institution. The occasion of a public reception at this time is the opening of the remodelled and enlarged quarters, and The Courier-Gazette is betraying no confidence when it assures the prospective visitors that they will be amazed at the transformation which has been wrought by the general contractors, Leonard &

W. G. Washburn, Under Whose Presidency the Bank Is Making Remarkable Strides

Vice President F. H. Jordan, Dean of Thomaston's Banking Interests

Tilden of Boston. The size of the bank has been nearly doubled by taking over the quarters which formerly served as the town's postoffice, and which had as its last previous tenant, Wilbur P. Strong, jeweler.

With the completion of addition and alterations, this section of the country will be served by a bank which is modern in every respect. The remodeling of these quarters has been accomplished while the bank has been in operation, causing little inconvenience in the daily routine, yet the area of the old quarters has been increased approximately 100 percent. The finished banking rooms are now equipped in the most up-to-date manner, being finished in American walnut with walnut paneled dados throughout the main banking room, conference room, directors' room, officers' space and safe deposit department.

The plaster walls above the dado in these rooms are painted in two tones and finished in colors that pleasingly blend with the furnishings and hangings.

The officers' rail, counter front and dado in the public space are of rose lavender marble with black and gold base.

The grille work around safe deposit department and counter screen is of wrought iron finished and glazed in bronze. The grille work of counter screen is backed with magnalite glass. Above the grille to the cornice of screen, quarter-inch polished plate glass has been used. The deal plates for wicket openings in the screen are of black Carrara glass with a honed finish.

The check desks for customers in the public space are of walnut with pigeon holes for bank checks, deposit slips, etc. for the use of customers. The tops of these desks are of inch thick polished plate glass. The desks are lighted with bronze reflectors, mounted on glass tops.

The working counter in back of the screen is covered with battleship linoleum. This counter is lighted with concealed trough reflectors located under walnut shelf above the base of counter grille. Below this working counter top there are drawers, cupboards, shelving and knee spaces for the use of clerks.

The floors of working space, machine room, conference room, and coupon booths are covered with jasper battleship linoleum cemented in place. The floors of the public space, officers' space, conference room and safe deposit department are covered with rubber tile flooring cemented in place.

The heating and plumbing of the remodelled bank are in keeping with the high standard which has been shown in all departments of the construction work, the entire equipment being of the latest design. W. T. Smith of Thomaston and Rockland was the contractor.

The entrance to the banking quarters has been entirely remodelled and a new marquee erected over it. This marquee is of cast and wrought iron and is hung from the front of the building with heavy iron chains. The front and sides of the marquee are electrically illuminated so that the entrance to the bank can easily be located, whether day or night. It bears the legend: "1825—Thomaston National Bank—1929."

FLEW TO NORTH HAVEN

Col. Lindbergh and Bride Join Members of Latter's Family For a Stay of Two or Three Days

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at North Haven at 6.30, standard time last night, having made the journey from New York in an Aeromarine-Klemm monoplane which stopped at the Scarborough Airport only long enough to refuel.

According to the Portland newspaper the Lone Eagle was disinclined to discuss the destination of his plane, but at the summer home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in North Haven, the happy occupants frankly admitted to a Courier-Gazette reporter that the Colonel and Anne were there for a stay of two or three days. Where they will go after leaving the island was not divulged, but a recent Associated Press despatch from Havana says that the Colonel is to be in the Cuban metropolis on the morning of Sept. 20 (one week from tomorrow) for the inaugural foreign air-mail flight from Miami to Dutch Guiana, announcement to this effect having been made by the Pan American Airways.

Col. Lindbergh's plane landed last night on the specially prepared field adjoining the beautiful Morrow summer residence. There were no prying eyes of press correspondents to view the reunion which took place as the smiling Colonel and his happy bride were greeted by the members of the Morrow family. Neither were there any armed guards on the Morrow estate to repel the invasion of an unwelcome newspaper horde.

It profits but little to speculate on what might have been had not this "army of occupation" made itself so unwelcome and insistent. Many believe that the wedding would have taken place at North Haven, or that

RAISING BUDGET

Salvation Army Seeks $3500 Toward the Current Year's Expenses

The local branch of the Salvation Army is seeking to raise a budget of $3500 toward the year's expenses and to this end the following letter has been sent out by George B. Wood, chairman of the local advisory board:

"The Salvation Army which for the past five years ending March 1929, has had its budget raised by the Community Chest, is now responsible for the raising of its own funds for the maintenance of its work in this city."

"This organization whose social and charitable work grows out of its religious faith, practices as well as believes, that it is of little use to try and help people in a spiritual or moral way, if the individuals under consideration are destitute of shelter, food and clothing."

"Poverty and misfortune are gaunt spectres that are always in our midst; the Salvation Army is a faithful and untiring agency in combating these evils; owing to lack of funds last year many calls for aid had to be denied."

"We are confident you will assist our local advisory board in raising the amount of $3500 to cover relief and general maintenance for the coming year. Make checks payable to the Salvation Army, and mail to the Rockland National Bank, or hand to the Salvation Army workers when they call."

LIMEROCK POMONA

Limerock Valley Pomona Grange meets with North Haven Grange Saturday, with this program: Greeting, Worthy Master host Grange; response, Worthy Pomona Master; vocal solo, Ethel Connon; roll call—"The Best Book I Have Read This Year;" chorus singing, by the Grange; reading, Inez Packard; address, Worthy State Lecturer, Allison P. Howes; song, Robert McIntosh; question—"Is the Grange an Efficient Training School for Community Leaders?" Jesse Tolman, Frank E. Post, Scott A. Rackliff; reading, Margaret Young; vocal solo, Clarence Pendleton.

HAS A BROKEN NECK

Fred Keller, 40, of Rockport, one of the town's most active and prominent young men, sustained serious injuries last night through a fall from a tree. At Knox Hospital it was found that he had a so-called broken neck, the injuries resulting in paralysis, it is understood.

filled that office until Mr. Jordan's election in 1873.

This well officered bank is also fortunate in its board of directors which comprises John Brown, T. B. Wyllie, I. C. Thurston, and A. J. Elliot. Two valued employees, whose services must not be overlooked in this review are Miss Frances A. Shaw, assistant cashier; and Miss Mary McPhail, bookkeeper.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

THE ROSARY

The hours I spent with thee, dear heart,
Are as a string of pearls to me,
I count them over, every one apart,
My rosary.

Each hour a pearl, each pearl a prayer,
To still a heart in absence wrung;
I tell each bead unto the end and there
A cross is hung.

Oh memories that bless—and burn!
Oh barren gain—and bitter loss!
I kiss each bead, and strive at last to learn
To kiss the cross.

To kiss the cross.

ECHOES OF MONDAY

Noting that politics and the ambitions of would-be candidates were permitted, in the defeat of the Carlton bill, to obstruct a measure that was designed to benefit Maine, the Lewiston Journal points out that—

The best feature of the entire matter comes after the battle, Mr. Wyman's statement of a purpose to keep on doing all that is possible to develop Maine is a fine example of the patience of a great builder. His letter to the public transcends in importance all of the other statements and issues of the case. How easy to remain silent; or to have spoken in disappointment or anger; or to have indicated a sentiment of revenge or to have mentioned that this was the end of his efforts.

In an interesting editorial review of Monday's outcome, in which it expresses the opinion that the defeat of the bill is very detrimental to Maine's interests, the Press Herald adds:

The water power question still remains in politics. Doubtless it will inspire several persons who have ambition to fill important public offices to offer themselves as candidates. A premium has been placed upon the demagogues and radicals who desire to be recognized as the saviors of the people's rights. In the near future it is probable that some of these prospective candidates will make themselves known. If they do seek office under the guise they now assume and should be elected, all we can say is "God help the State of Maine."

It is difficult to dislodge politics from any great public question upon which it has fastened its stranglehold. Politics jockeyed the Fernald bill into the statute books. The people of Maine are right-meaning. Not a very large proportion of them, with all the campaign of education that was carried on, understood the reasons upon which the Legislature unanimously endorsed the export power bill. President Wyman of the Central Maine Power Company, expressing his regret at the failure of the people to add their endorsement, "for the passing of the bill would have been a great help to the State of Maine," goes on to say in his comment upon the present defeat of his ambitions: "However, we will go ahead and do our level best in every way that is possible to improve the industrial condition of the State. We have done this in the past, and pledge ourselves to do it in the future." And we predict that in the not too remote future our people are going to support him in his ambitions to further the prosperity of Maine.

Appreciating the Salvation Army through its good work carried on for a generation past among the needy of our community, Rockland has voiced its approval by lending to the organization a generous support. For the past five years this support has been administered through the Community Chest, but now the Army reverts to its former method of direct association with the public. The campaign for its budget of $3,500 is to take the form of a house to house canvass and will doubtless receive the customary friendly reception from our people. Pledging itself to faithful stewardship of the funds contributed to its support, the Army in a home service appeal says:

We are going to reach further into the dark alleys. We are going still deeper into the slums. We are going to provide more fresh milk for starving babies. We are going to house more old people, whose eyes are dim and whose hands tremble and whose lips quiver when they note each setting sun. We are going to comfort more of the lonely; we are going to throw a longer and stronger arm around young women who take a misstep. We are going to cheer more men who are out of work and who are struggling to support their little families.

Our conclusions should not be too hasty in the matter of ocean flight. It is still three thousand miles of ocean to cross and one swallow does not make a summer. "The air carrier," says Barron's Financial Weekly, "is still a long way from replacing the ocean liner. Two trips by a dirigible in the first months of the year do not prove the obsolescence of the Bremen or the Mauretania." And it points out that the requirements of safety and comfort set limits to the demand for speed, and though the Zeppelin's voyage is far more than a stunt, it is far less than a certainty. If the Zeppelin could show 200 voyages without once turning back to the home port on account of bad weather, the competition would indeed be formidable. It cannot show that, nor can it be expected to in North Atlantic weather. "The liner which makes the passage dependably, in good weather and bad, in less than five days between the Ambrose Light and Cherbourg will get the passenger business."

TALK OF THE TOWN

Golden Rod Chapter resumes its regular meetings Friday evening with a business session only.

The Central Maine Power Company is doing a considerable job rebuilding the road-bed of the Thomaston line.

Associate Justice William R. Pattangall, who is presiding over the present term of court, is to be the speaker at Rotary luncheon tomorrow.

Seventy-six pins was the margin of victory for R. Doucette and B. Robinson in their match with L. Doucette and E. Sturtevant at the Star alleys last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. N. Tribou have moved from 19 Rankin street into the tenement over the Home Methods Kitchen, corner of Main and Lindsey streets.

At Monroe Fair yesterday Dr. Ellingwood's Sheik won first money in the 2.18 class (best time 2.14) and M. Frank Donohue's Bob Braden won first money in the 2.22 class (best time 2.15).

A freak snail (we call it such, pending a closer inspection by Norman W. Lermund), reached this office yesterday through the medium of Augustus Rankin, to whom it was sent by a Crichton friend.

Mrs. Roy McConchie, who has been conducting a popular shoe dinner resort at her Ash Point home, has leased Harry A. Mather's Maine Central Lunch on Pleasant street for the winter, and will take charge of it from next Monday.

"On With the Show," a picture that all will greatly enjoy—an outstanding picture if there ever was one—will be at Park Theatre for three days starting next Wednesday. It is entirely in natural color and is all talking-singing-dancing.

The Kitty McLaughlin concert scheduled for Sept. 18 has been postponed, the change made necessary due to new activities taken on by Miss McLaughlin in New York. While a definite date is not yet named, it would appear to be the latter part of the month or early October.

Autumn leaves are falling and the summer flyers are leaving. Lieut. Blaufuss, having completed his Army leave of absence, starts today for Langley Field, Va., and Harold Moon, also a pilot, has gone to his home in Philadelphia on a vacation. Both have been very successful here and leave many friends.

The annual State Sunday School Convention will be held Oct. 8-10 at the Immanuel Baptist Church in Portland. The convention will include church school workers, pastors, directors of religious education, superintendents, officers, teachers, pupils, parents and friends from all Protestant churches and church schools.

The Monmouth Canning Co. of Portland will award special premiums at the North Knox Fair, Sept. 24-26, an assortment of canned goods for each of the best display of the following exhibits: corn, beans, home canned, boys and girls 4-H exhibits and Grange exhibit. These assortments will be selected from the various articles canned at the several factories operated by this company in Maine. They will prove attractive prizes for the lucky ones who "lug 'em away" and much interest is already being shown among exhibitors.

Week after next—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—comes the North Knox Fair at Union, with extra good racing events offered for the second and third day. Wednesday's bill will call for the 2.20 class, purse $200; 2.22 class, purse $300; and 2.27 class, purse $250. The Thursday card will comprise the 2.17 class, purse $200; 2.24 class, purse $300, and 2.29 class, purse $200.

Mr. Stuart left Wednesday morning for Kennebunk, where he will visit his parents, Rev. and Mrs. O. W. Stuart, from there he goes to Wheaton, Ill., where he enters Wheaton College.

A snatch thief made two unsuccessful attempts yesterday to steal a purse carried by Miss Norma Packard a member of the office force at the Central telephone exchange. Armed with her description the police promptly rounded up a stranger. Miss Packard was quite certain they had the right man, but did not feel sufficiently positive to swear to a complaint.

Some of the prettiest flower gardens at the Northend may be seen on North Main street. Mrs. Albert Winslow has beautiful dahlias, hostas, gladioli, etc. while Frank H. Gregory has a fine display of gladioli, petunias and other flowers. Willis I. Ayer's hedge of phlox and other plants is always a source of beauty. These gardens reveal a great amount of work and care, and have made a delightful showing throughout the summer, having been enjoyed by the passers-by as well as the owners.

When C. S. Staples retired from business in North Haven nine years ago he may have pictured himself as seated in a rocking chair on the piazza, sniffling in the salty breezes and watching the passing craft, with a pause for meals and sleep when such seemed necessary. But men who have been busy a lifetime do not easily drop old habits so Mr. Staples took up real estate brokerage as a "diversion." Since that time he has sold about $30,000 worth, his latest transfer being a piece of land from his North Shore farm.

Owl's Head Inn reports an especially good season this year with more applications than could be accommodated. In addition to the hotel three new bungalows have been built and all were occupied. The drinking water is supplied from an artesian well on the premises and is of unusually good quality. The old Inn is delightfully located and evidently appreciated reservations and all booked for the entire month of September (The Inn closes Oct. 5) demonstrating that more and more that month is becoming one of the best of the year for Maine tourists.

Skunk stories seem to multiply, but here is a truly true one. A Northend man early the other morning upon looking out the window, saw a skunk indulging in the most remarkable antics, and found that the animal was unable to get its head out of a tomato can. The Northend man is kindhearted and apparently fearless. He worked on the can until he had removed it, and the skunk went away assuming that the benefactor did not have to change clothes. It is thought by many that the skunks have nests in the old Thorndike house on Pine street which is in a tumble down condition.

The Universalist Church of Norway, of which Rev. Phyl A. Allen is pastor, observed the 100th anniversary of the dedication of its building Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. The society was one of the first to be formed among the Universalists of Maine, the organization dating back to 1798. The original building was outgrown in 1828, and the present structure was erected and dedicated in the fall of the following year. An interesting feature was the communion service held on Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Guilford, the only surviving ex-pastor with the exception of Rev. Marguerite Pearman McIntire, who served temporarily before the beginning of the present pastorate of Mr. Allen.

The special weekend sales have started at the Erie Gift Shop. This week it's ash trays and smokers—two lots priced at 19c and 59c. (Values up to $1.25). Look for others every Thursday—adv.

HAS BOUGHT "LONGWOOD"

Vice President of Curtis Publishing Co. Now Owns An Attractive Estate In Northport

The real estate office of Orrin J. Dickey of Belfast, reports the passing of the papers Monday, in the sale of the beautiful estate in Northport, known as "Longwood," which for a number of years has been the summer home of the late Louis K. Hirsch of Akron, Ohio, and recently occupied by Mrs. Hirsch.

The buyer is John B. Williams, vice president of the Curtis Publishing Company, and a resident of Philadelphia, and through this change, there is brought to the Penobscot Bay section, another member of the Saturday Evening Post family, for the Curtis family have long been residents of Camden. It is the intention of Mr. Williams to make many changes and improvements and he will spend a considerable amount of money there in preparing the place for his occupancy in the summer of 1930.

This estate was formerly a part of the Gen. Knox grant. It carries a considerable bit of history along with it, and Mr. Williams receives not only a beautiful estate, but one teeming with historic legends. His plans, prepared by Frederick Patterson, the Bangor architect, are for enlarging the bungalow, to a marked degree, while the grounds will receive vast improvements. The bungalow is reached from the Atlantic Highway by a long winding road, and is situated in a beautiful grove of white birches and is one of the most attractive in the State.

While the grounds have been left largely in their natural state, some sections have been cleared and through the groves there are vistas of the distant hills and mountains.

and to the east the islands and bits of the Penobscot Bay. There is an abundance of beautiful trees and wild flowers and the whole plot is one of the most attractive on the Penobscot.

Few out of State summer residents have done more for Penobscot Bay section in a financial way, than Cyrus Curtis, of the Curtis Publishing Company, especially in Rockland and Camden, and Mr. Williams as another member of that publishing house, is most welcome to the colony of Philadelphia, who are making this part of Penobscot Bay, their home, each summer. From present plans Mr. Williams will have one of the show places on the Penobscot Bay.

During the rebuilding of the bungalow Mr. Dickey has rented Mr. Williams the Buckmar House, nearby and owned by Victor Whittier of Belfast for operating purposes.

Another sale reported by Mr. Dickey this week, is that of the summer home of the late Dr. Benj. Colson of Bangor, at Northport, for the owner Charles W. McClintock of Fairfield, to Prof. W. A. Tarr, of the faculty of the University of Michigan. Prof. and Mrs. Tarr are spending their first summer in this section and were so pleased with the Penobscot Bay, that they decided to make it their permanent summer home. They are already planning a great many improvements and changes in this estate and will spend this fall to have it in readiness for next season's occupancy.

As the residence of the late Dr. Colson, it was one of the first of the cottages to be built in the Temple Heights colony. It is one of the most attractive places along the Bay.

Union "Manslaughter" Case Resolves Itself Into Bill For Assault and Battery—Some New Citizens

Supreme Court came into its own this morning with the arrival of the traverse juries, the impaneling of which was in progress when this paper went to press. The grand jury, having completed its labors has passed out of the picture for this term, at least. This jury organized with Raymond S. Bird of Rockland as foreman and Mrs. Bessie Stephenson of Union as clerk. The other grand jurors, whose duties will call them together again at the February and June terms of the new Superior Court, are:

John M. Brennan, Rockland
Albion Caddy, South Thomaston
Guy Douglas, Rockland
Mrs. Addie May Erickson, St. George
Aubrey L. Fuller, Appleton
Christopher J. Grassow, Hope
Alfred P. Gray, Warren
Wesley M. Keller, Rockport
Lyman Merrifield, Washington
Alfred H. Morton, Friendship
Herman Payson, Owl's Head
Allie O. Pillsbury, Camden
Mrs. Della Shimmers, Vinalhaven
Mrs. Annie F. Simmons, Rockland
Mrs. Bessie L. Stephenson, Union
Lester F. Stone, North Haven
Charles H. Woodcock, Thomaston
Hibbard N. Young, Cushing

The proclamation for grand jurors summoned "ye good men," but it will be observed that there were also four nice women on this panel.

In giving his instructions to that body Tuesday Associate Justice Pattangall referred to the arguments which are being advanced in some quarters for the elimination of the jury system. The removal of this ancient custom does not find favor with Judge Pattangall however. "I cannot understand why the grand jury should be done away with," he told the members.

The grand jury reported early yesterday afternoon and turned over to Clerk Griffin 10 "true bills," eight of which were made public.

Special interest was felt in the case of Clyde C. Butler, who had been arraigned in Municipal Court on a charge of manslaughter, following an affray in Union, June 15, which had resulted in the death of Hadley D. Prouty, who operated the 101 express. When the grand jury reported it was found that the charge had been moderated to assault and battery.

Russell Thomas, who made a sensational getaway from Knox County Jail Jan. 8, and who was retaken in Pennsylvania some weeks ago, was still at the jail breaking. He was indicted for the Limerock street institution at last accounts, but "I don't dare boast about it," to use the words of one of the officials.

Julius Lappanen of St. George, who chased a fellow countryman named Matt Karty with a pitchfork, was indicted for assault with intent to kill.

HOME OF ASTI SPUMANTE

When travelers in Italy have a party or special celebration they make merry with the aid of a bottle of Asti Spumante—most delicious of sparkling white wines. It is esteemed everywhere as a rival to champagne. But do these travelers go to Asti to see where this liquid sunshine comes from? If you disembark from an Italian liner at Genoa, or happen to find yourself in Milan or Turin, go to Asti by all means. It is a mediaeval-looking town set in the midst of rolling hills covered with vineyards and luxuriant gardens. There are old houses and numerous towers and narrow streets to explore. More interesting than the Gothic cathedral is the church of San Giovanni. From the sacristy of the cathedral I obtained the key, and went into the crypt which is an ancient Christian basilica upon which the present church was built. It dates from the sixth century and has monolithic columns with capitals bearing curious Christian symbols, most interesting to a student of architecture or church history. Asti was the birthplace of the poet-dramatist Alfieri, and the citizens are proud enough of the fact to have erected a statue and dedicated a museum in his honor.

said Priscilla—

"We light the new Gas Heater in the Fall, when cold weather threatens, and forget it until Spring. Except for setting the indicator spigots, to change the temperature from time to time, that's the whole story. John thinks it's marvelous—no more dirty furnace tending for him."

GAS house heating seems like magic to folks who all their lives have struggled with old-fashioned systems.

Now they enjoy even, healthful heat and clean cellars, with no more unsightly bins, or ashes floating in the air to contaminate things all through the house. "Our newly-found freedom"—said Priscilla and John.

Investigate this new-day method of house heating—now—before winter comes. Visit your gas company for a practical demonstration.

And while there, ask to see other interesting appliances that the gas industry has contributed to easier, better, happier living—ranges, water heaters, refrigerators, incinerators, laundry dryers, fireplaces, radiators, garage heaters, etc.

A small amount down brings you any of them. And you pay the balance on convenient terms.

THE BUSY GRANGERS

In the recent fight at Washington put up by the potato growers of the country to secure an increased tariff rate on potatoes, the National Grange took an active part and was largely responsible for the advanced schedule of duty finally agreed upon. Large numbers of potato growers journeyed to Washington to present their case, and found there the hearty cooperation of the National Grange legislative office, with many of their meetings held in the latter building, where a vigorous program of action was planned.

Under the present law the duty rate on potatoes is 50 cents per hundred pounds and as originally reported by the ways and means committee the new schedule contained no increase, the plea of the distressed potato growers having been ignored entirely. As soon as the Grange threw its influence into the case an agreement was reached to raise the duty from 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred pounds, and it is in this shape that probable enactment will be made.

Especially active in this potato fight were the growers from Aroostook County, Maine, which is the principal potato growing section of the United States, backed by all the senators and congressmen from the Pine Tree State. The Grange has almost 60,000 members in Maine, distributed over every county in approximately 500 subordinates, and nearly all the large potato growers in Maine are active workers in the Grange.

This year sees the extension to hundreds of changes in the code of states of the idea which has steadily been gaining ground the past three years, of setting apart a "Grange Day" wherein all the Granges within a state are expected to mobilize their efforts on some improvement project for the good of the community, the members giving their services gratuitously. Last year's Grange day saw Grange members worked for the public good on such projects and the number of workers is likely to be at least trebled this year.

On such occasions the workers assemble early in the Grange hall, map out the day's program, and put it over vigorously; the Grange women serve appetizing meals and in a day of merit as well as of achievement. Village parks, town cemeteries, schoolhouse grounds and other bits of local environment are made the object of these improvement undertakings, and the rural appearance of America benefits greatly by the extension of this commendable Grange idea.

A Grange in Michigan called in a health expert at one of its meetings to give a demonstration on "Bedside care," greatly to the benefit of the large crowd of interested listeners assembled within the Grange hall.

When the National Grange meets at Seattle, Washington, for its 63rd annual session, it is expected that a class of from 3000 to 4000 candidates will be in waiting for the seventh degree, the highest conferred by this fraternity.

The Grange in Michigan was very successful during the recent session of the state legislature in securing the enactment of several pieces of legislation designed to be helpful to agriculture and to the rural interests of the state. One of these was the enactment of a $2,000,000 state-aid measure for schools, which the Grange had long sponsored.

Other measures enacted which the Grange advocated were: a potato grading bill and a new milk code, which especially interests the farmers; establishing branch offices for selling license plates in cities of 10,000 population and upwards; providing that owner of automobile shall not be liable for injury to gratuitous passenger; providing capital punishment for persons convicted of first degree murder; and increasing inheritance tax law so as to increase revenue.

The effort to enact a state income tax law passed the lower branch of the legislature, but was killed in the upper. The attempt to secure an income tax law proves uphill work, but the Grange continues its vigorous agitation, maintaining that this is the only fair way to get at hitherto untouched taxable property.

Believing that America needs a revival of the neighborly spirit, the Ohio State Grange is backing a unique undertaking, whose outcome will be watched with keen interest. Attractive prizes have been offered to the Grange members who will write the best essays on the topic "The Spirit of Neighborliness," and these are offered not only to members of subordinate Granges, but to the youngsters in Juvenile organizations as well. It is intended to bring out some of the phases of rural neighborhood life which characterized the state a generation ago, but which have so rapidly passed away in this mechanical and everybody-to-be-paid age.

In Ohio, as well as elsewhere, Granges are characterized by their kindly works of ministry, which in numberless instances have been manifested toward those in distress through sickness or other misfortune, and with entire timeliness the Grange can tackle this interesting subject. Arrangements have been made by the State Grange with one of the large broadcasting stations of the state to broadcast the proposed essay contest and later on to have some of the essays also broadcast for the information of the people.

THOMASTON

The O Club whose members are Mrs. Leah Davis, Misses Helen Studley, Gladys Doherty, and Mrs. Emma Young, had supper at the Copper Kettle Tuesday and attended the Strand Theatre.

Forrest Stone will enter the Bryant and Stratton Commercial School, Boston, Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis D. Young moved to Connecticut Monday to convey Mrs. Young's mother to her home.

Leo LaCourse and family have returned from a visit in New Hampshire and Boston.

Ramos Feehan has returned to Keene, N. H., to attend the Normal School in that city.

The dead limbs are being removed from the shade trees about town. Leander W. Thorndike and Edward Lindsey are performing the service.

Mrs. Helen Waite has returned from Rockland where she visited relatives.

William Hoffes of Portland and 30 friends from that city spent Sunday on his farm in North Cushing.

Mrs. Hattie Burton has stored her furniture and will spend the winter in Billerica, Mass., with her brother-in-law, Charles Burton.

Iral Kaler has moved from Beechwoods street into the Overlook house on Knox street, recently bought by Mr. Woodcock, district manager of the First National Stores.

Mrs. Maud Grafton is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Edward Andrews in Plainfield, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Potter and children Joan and Clark are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clark.

Leander Watts left Wednesday for New York to enter the Sailors' Snug Harbor at Staten Island.

Mrs. Cora Currier gave a bridge party Tuesday with Mrs. Bertha York as special guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble of Indiana are in town. Mr. Noble succeeded Mr. O'Connell as superintendent-in-charge of the East Coast Manufacturing Co. at the State Prison.

The Freshman Class of the High School numbers 28.

A stated communication of Henry Knox Chapter will be held in Masonic hall Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock. There will be balloting and inspection by R. E. George J. Goodwin, grand king of the Grand Chapter of Maine.

A special meeting of the Baptist Society is called for next Monday evening to hear and act upon a code of by-laws which has been prepared by the assessors of the society. The members are urged to attend as the meeting is of importance.

Mrs. Edith Newcomb, who has been visiting her sister, Miss Elizabeth Washburn, and grandfather, William G. Washburn left Tuesday for her home in Washington, D. C.

Miss Jane Miller is taking a post graduate course in the high school.

Miss Ruth Pillsbury is at home expecting to remain for two weeks before entering upon her permanent position as teacher of English in St. Mary's School, Concord, N. H.

Lutheran Burton, Leroy Burton, Jane Barry, Stephen Barry and Blanche Henry, graduates of the Thomaston High School left Wednesday morning for Orono to enter the University of Maine. Miss Mary Carter, James Fales, Jr., and Robert Mayo will also return in a few days to the University.

Mrs. Wendell Robinson and children who have been guests of Mrs. A. F. Rice returned Monday to Plushing, N. Y.

A cooked food sale is to be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the R. W. Walsh store, auspices of the music committee of the Baptist Church.

Miss Alida Hyler who has been having two weeks' vacation, returned Monday to her position as manager of the telephone exchange.

A party of 27 met at the home of Mrs. Sanford Hyler, Water street, Tuesday evening in honor of her birthday. At the same time her grandchild Doris Olson and nephew Ralph Copeland also celebrated their birthdays. A fine supper was served and three birthday cakes decorated the table. The evening was enjoyed with radio music, singing and dancing by Bill Smith and Virginia Beckett. Many pretty gifts were received.

At the Baptist Church next Sunday morning the pastor has a very important notice to read and would like to have every member present. Of course everybody is welcome, old or young, rich or poor, black or white.

At the evening service, the speaker will be Mrs. Carl Gray of Omaha, who has been summing in Cushing.

William Morse of New York, formerly of Thomaston, had a narrow escape from death Saturday while working on a yacht. He was pumping gasoline into the tank of another yacht when the engine was started, causing an explosion which hurled Mr. Morse and two others high in the air. They were rushed to the hospital, where wounds were treated.

Those of Mr. Morse, consisting of severe cuts and bruises, a cut in his arm requiring six stitches. Mr. Morse was married a month ago to Miss Ruth Sidelinger of this town.

A public reception will be held at the Thomaston National Bank from 2 to 5 p. m. Saturday. A description of the remodelled quarters appears elsewhere in this issue.

TENANTS HARBOR

Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Mont of Hartford recently made a brief visit with his aunt, Mrs. Emma M. Torrey. Deacon H. F. Kallach and daughter Mrs. E. E. Allen have returned from a visit with relatives in Marblehead, Mass.

Mrs. Roy Barter and son Francis who have been visiting her mother, Mrs. Lydia Hathorn and other relatives and friends of Glenmore, returned last week to their home in Winthrop, Mass.

Wallston community has again been saddened by the sudden death of one of its most respected neighbors—Austin Davis. Funeral services will be held this Thursday afternoon at his late home.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Mont and son Jack of West Hartford, Conn., who have been guests of her sister, Mrs. Emma Torrey, returned Tuesday to their home and were accompanied by Mrs. Albert Smith and daughter Arlene of West Somerville, Mass., who have been spending the summer with their mother, Mrs. W. W. Torrey.

Mrs. Smith's sons James and Leonard returned to Massachusetts Saturday by train to be present at the opening of the fall term of high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Whitehouse and daughter of Waltham, Mass., were guests over Labor Day of his mother, Mrs. Ella Alley. They plan to return to Texas again this winter, having lived there for several years previous to coming to Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mont, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank McNeill and Mrs. Emma Torrey motored to South Waldoboro last Sunday to visit relatives.

R. J. McKenzie of Bridgeport, Conn., who has been spending the summer here, returned home last week. Mrs. McKenzie will remain for some time yet.

THE POWER OF SONG
(For The Courier-Gazette)

The radio was singing songs Sweet with the memories of yester-years, And tender tunes that to hearts belong That hold a love unshaken by life's fears. The players at the table threw their carols With jokes and saucy rallies: No gracious thought their lips withheld, Though, to the song, they yielded unwarily; Darling, you shall ever be, ever be, Young and fair to me, to me.

The tender song, o'er the radio sent, Caught the players' lips in its fond intent. Till one began to scold and spare, Because her partner trumped her part. But soon the next trick called a pause To dissensions on the radio's air. And lips again the chorus caught, In accord with the tender thought. And once again the radio's song The players' lips would faintly prolong: Darling, you shall ever be, ever be, Young and fair to me, to me.

Central Maine Field Day Broke Records For Big Crowd and Good Time

The weather man favored the employees of Central Maine Power Company last Saturday when the fog disappeared and the sun shone to brighten up the events of the day. Sports of all kinds, for men, women and children were in order during the afternoon.

The rescue from pole contest was the high line outdoor event of the afternoon when a representative crew from each division competed for highest honors in rescuing a man from a pole who was supposed to have been electrocuted while working on the line. The crew representing the Eastern Division, under the direction of I. L. Ripley carried the honors for both the field day contest and the contest which included the Central Maine Power Company as a whole.

When supper time arrived employees and families, aggregating 900 hungry persons, filed down on the shore to participate in the bounteous feast furnished by the company, consisting of lobsters, clams, sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts, coffee and ice cream. Following the supper a dance was held in the pavilion with music furnished by Danette's Orchestra from Augusta. The Central Maine Power Company band furnished music during the afternoon and while the guests were eating supper. The punch booth was a well patronized feature during the afternoon and evening. A. A. Young of the Eastern Division acted as general chairman, and is listening to many congratulations and compliments on the successful handling of the big affair.

Oscar S. Duncan and family have returned to their home on Main street, after spending the summer at Holiday Beach.

Miss Hazel M. Day of Winslow's Mills is the guest of Mrs. Russell Bartlett at The Highlands.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Thurston motored yesterday to Orono accompanied by their son Karl who is entering the freshman class of University of Maine.

Mrs. Martha Maddocks of Owl's Head was the guest Tuesday and Wednesday of her sister, Mrs. Julia Speed, Cedar street.

Mrs. Emma Crittenden of Bristol, Conn., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter E. Maurer, Frederick street.

William Wallis of Beverly, Mass., is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Messer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dixon of Foxboro, Mass., and son Melvin Dixon and wife, and little son Donald of Brockton, Mass., who have been visiting relatives in Warren, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ulmer, Gurdy street.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ingraham who have been occupying the Moffitt residence on Broadway have returned to their home in Bangor.

Willis I. Ayer is in Livermore Falls, called there by the serious illness of his brother, Lowell Ayer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hopkins of Melrose Highlands are guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Winslow, Limerock street. Mr. Hopkins is employed in Thompson's research laboratory at the General Electric plant in Lynn, and incidentally covers factory news for the Lynn Item.

Friends of Miss Marion Webb will be highly pleased to learn that the reports concerning her "serious" condition were much exaggerated. She underwent a minor surgical operation in a Boston hospital one week ago today, and on the following Tuesday was able to be up and around. She leaves the hospital the first of the week and will go to Concord, N. H. to visit her sister, Mrs. Mayland Morse.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bowley entertained at supper and cards at their Leimond Pond cottage last evening, their guests being Dr. and Mrs. Perley Damon, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Spear, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Moody and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jordan. Mrs. Jordan and Mr. Moody won honors in cards.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McLeone motored yesterday to Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Talbot and Mrs. David Talbot are in Portland for a few days.

Mrs. H. A. Buffum opened her home on Grove street yesterday afternoon for a bridge tea for the benefit of Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R., and it proved to be one of the most attractive social events of the late summer season. Mrs. Buffum was assisted by the regent of the chapter, Mrs. Charles Sheldon, and the chairman, Mrs. J. A. Burner. There were six tables in play, honors falling to Mrs. S. A. Burpee, Mrs. E. F. Glover, Mrs. E. L. Brown, Mrs. A. J. Bird, Mrs. H. B. Fales and Mrs. Lucia Burpee.

Ex-Senator Gardner Tells

Lions Why He Favors the

St. Lawrence Project

While ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner was chairman of the American section of the International Joint Commission he became intensely interested in the St. Lawrence waterway project, and had first hand opportunity of studying the merits of the question. He has steadily maintained that interest since his retirement from the Commission, and today there is probably no other man in Maine so well qualified to discuss the question.

The entertainment committee yesterday presented him as the speaker at the noonday meeting of the Lions Club at Hotel Rockland, and in the brief time at his disposal the members and guests were given valuable insight into the project, the consummation of which would mean a 1400-mile extension of the United States coast line.

The sole obstacle to the opening of the waterway at the present time is a stretch of 48 miles between Montreal and Ontario not now navigable by ocean going steamships.

What does it mean to Maine? Senator Gardner answered his own question with the declaration that nothing could be of such great and lasting benefit as the opening up of that waterway, and presented figures tending to prove that New England is being severely penalized to get transportation through New York.

It would cost approximately $142,000,000 to so improve the St. Lawrence River as to make it navigable for ocean going steamships. The proposition would be opposed and antagonized by interests in New York State because they would not want to see transportation diverted therefrom. The annual saving in freight rates for New England would amount to $122,000,000 to $165,000,000, and in Senator Gardner's opinion would be a much greater farm relief medium than anything which Congress could provide in the next five years.

The speaker told of the power development which would result at Long Sault Rapids, and how the waterway project could be carried out without expense to either government. Water transportation has made Detroit the fourth largest city in the country and Cleveland the sixth largest. It will reduce the rail haul into New England 550 miles when the new Welland Canal is completed.

"It is simply an economic condition," said Senator Gardner in concluding his remarks on the proposed St. Lawrence waterway; "meantime we are paying tribute to New York."

Yesterday's visitors included two members of the order—King Lion P. H. Montgomery of the Camden-Rockport Club, and Dr. A. H. Chase of Boston; as well as two guests, Deputy Sheriff J. D. Pease of Hope and Sidney Homes of Washington.

THE WHEREFORES OF BASEBALL

A Review of the Past Season, and a Frank Discussion of What the Future Holds for the Sport

(By the Official Scorer)

Last Saturday's double-header in Camden brought to a close one of the most unprofitable baseball seasons in Rockland's history, and the reasons are not difficult to understand. Knox County, for several seasons, had been enjoying semi-professional baseball of such a high calibre that the sudden drop to the amateur article was almost a shock.

The impossibility of continuing the sport with salaried players—at least on the basis of the past two seasons—is so obvious that it is almost a waste of time to discuss the proposition. Last season's sport left Rockland with a deficit of about $1200, which one way and another has been reduced, the writer understands to a little less than $700. Camden was left with a debt of approximately $2000, and has made some reduction—how much I am not in a position to know. Belfast's deficit was taken care of by a patriotic fan, but devoid of its principal industry the outlook in that city was not too bright. With a dead horse in Rockland, an even larger dead horse in Camden, and industrial depression in Belfast (which has since been happily remedied), it will be readily seen that the Maine Coast League must necessarily take an enforced vacation.

Portland, with a population of 75,000 has great difficulty in maintaining a New England League team, yet towns like Camden, Belfast and Rockland were undertaking to support players of very nearly the same class, and meet a 10-weeks expense bill of around $7000. All of the money did not go to the players to be sure, for baseball is quite an expensive sport outside of the teams, themselves.

I am convinced that all three towns were paying salaries out of proportion to those which should have been paid, but the rivalry was keen and everybody wanted a winning team, forgetting for the moment that there must come a day of reckoning—a day when the chill blasts of fall had driven baseball out of the minds of the fans, and when a handful of directors faced the dubious prospect of making up a large deficit.

In conversation with a baseball player at Togus earlier in the season—a player well known to every Knox County fan—I was asked the question of whether Rockland was to have a salaried team this season. I replied emphatically in the negative and gave the reasons. My baseball friend said:

"Say, I can bring you down just as good a team as you had last year and for half the price you were paying."

My informant was a man who was in a position to know whereof he spoke, and was undoubtedly sincere in his offer, but it only served to increase my suspicion that we had been hooked for higher wages than we should have been paying.

Maine had baseball leagues this season, but on each team there were usually about two salaried players, the others being home boys. The playing was necessarily, far below the calibre that Knox and Waldo Counties saw, but the fans were not quite so blasé as they are here in Knox County and they turned out in mobs and enjoyed the sport.

Meantime what did we see in this season?

First an attempt in Rockland and Camden to float Twilight Leagues. Players who make no pretence of being experts were enlisted to fill out the quota of five or six teams, and with the strength thus divided the results were not particularly elevating. What really ruined these leagues (Rockland's anyhow) was the fact that some of the players did not take themselves seriously and the handful of fans grew steadily smaller as they saw that competitive sport had deteriorated into something suggestive of kiddishness.

Then came the belated suggestion of a Knox County League composed of Rockland, Camden, Thomaston and St. George, using the best team which each town was able to present. The result was really commendable sport, for the teams were well matched, and I saw many plays which would have sent last season's fans frantic with enthusiasm had they been made by some hired player.

It was good enough baseball for almost anybody who likes baseball for the sake of the sport, yet the fans were apparently not quite ready to condescend to see home talent. They knew best what they wanted, of course, but some of us could not help thinking that if the devotion to semi-professional baseball had extended itself to helping lift the present burden off the directors' backs they might have had the kind of sport upon which they seem to insist.

There was another drawback, and that was the absence of daylight saving which is being so universally enjoyed elsewhere east of the Mississippi River that strangers look upon us in the way they would look upon anything which seems to be amiss.

Knox County had two seasons of Twilight League which drew record crowds to Oakland Park, and which left pleasing recollections that years will not efface. Such a league can scarcely prosper without daylight saving.

I cannot close this screed without expressing my appreciation of the managers and teams which furnished what sport we did see in Knox County this summer. A better class of boys it has not been my fortune to meet. They were all good sportsmen, and they worked as hard and as earnestly as though they were drawing down some of those inflated salaries, which the Maine Coast League could so ill afford to pay.

I want to remind the fans once more that the town of St. George furnished an example of good sportsmanship which could be emulated with profit anywhere in the State. The bulk of the players were High School boys who had carefully heeded their preceptor, Ernest Rawley, and won everybody's admiration by the gallant stand which they made against Rockland, with its wealth of material; and against Thomaston and Camden. This team never failed to put in appearance when it was scheduled, and was always on time. The boys disliked to lose, but accepted their defeats manfully, and tried harder next time.

The Thomaston team, managed by Maurice Sawyer, was a formidable opponent, but lost several of its players at the critical moment, when Rockland was forging into the lead.

The Camden team managed by George Thomas was much stronger than its defeats would seem to indicate. Its showing last Saturday stamped it as an outfit of which the home fans would have been proud had it maintained the same clip all season. It is refreshing to note that arrangements are already being made for putting a strong local team in the field next season.

Rockland emerged as league champion by a scant margin. The team was managed by that staunch veteran, A. C. McLoon, and was playing really classy ball when the season ended.

And now what about next year? Professional baseball seems about as far distant as it did last spring. The obvious thing, then, is a county league, made up of local players and summer visitors,—organized not as the shades of fall were drawing, but while the sun is riding its highest, and the urge to be out in the open is strongest upon those in whose veins red blood runs.

With these rambling reflections on my mind I may pick up enough courage to prepare for Saturday's issue an All-County League team.

EXPLOITING MAINE

Organizing To Give the State An Adequate Nation-wide Publicity

In an effort to exploit Eastern Maine and to give it the nationwide advertising publicity that it lacks an organization has been formed by Dick Reed, well known newspaper man and publicity expert, to be known as the Eastern Maine Publicity and Civic Service Bureau. More than 100 letters were sent to the municipal heads of every town on the Maine Coast from Bath to Bar Harbor asking them to become honorary members of the organization and to offer their moral support in putting the plan across.

Mr. Reed stated that he had carefully worked out the plan by many weeks of study and believed that he had developed something that would go a long way towards putting the coastal section of Maine before the eyes of the world. "It is an organization for Eastern Maine alone," Mr. Reed stated. "We will always work independently of any other organization but of course will always cooperate in any just cause."

The announcement of the plan has been received very well in many circles and prominent men have urged Mr. Reed to go ahead with his plan. It was said. Those who have the best interests of this section of Maine at heart are aware of the need of the right kind of advertising and see in the newly created plan an answer to one of Eastern Maine's biggest problems. It is planned to get the proposition thoroughly lined up before Jan. 1st when the main office at Rockland will be opened and action started.

Branch bureaus in every town in the section served by the bureau will be got into readiness to offer service.

A brief outline of the plan was given in the letters mailed this week, one of them to the head of the municipality. The letters read:

Through the medium of this letter I want to invite you to become an honorary member of the Eastern Maine Publicity and Civic Service Bureau. There will be no charge to you whatsoever as I feel that the Bureau will be highly honored to have you among its membership. There is no catch to this proposition. It is strictly a matter for the promotion of Eastern Maine organized and supervised by myself—a native of this section.

Here is my plan briefly: The Bureau will get officially into action on Jan. 1st, 1930. It will serve the coastal communities within its territory and will work to get folks to come down here and visit us. It will publish a magazine called the Down Easter which will be filled with strictly Down East pictures, stories and articles to be sent to every section of America. It will attempt to develop the coastal towns and help the merchants and townfathers in any proposition to increase the business and social welfare of the town. It will be an organization for all of us and subject to our suggestions and requests.

For instance—This summer Camden held a regatta. The publicity, advertising and program book netted a large sum of money to an individual who specializes in that work. The Bureau would handle that work for nothing as a part of its service. Any community which has an affair of any kind scheduled can call upon the Bureau for its free publicity. We will put the thing across.

A membership entitles you—to all the rights of a member, a membership card, a free subscription to the magazine Down Easter, 10 per cent discount on any advertising that you might want to place in the magazine, a 10 per cent discount on any advertising matter handled by the Bureau, the satisfaction of knowing that you are helping promote your community, a monthly bulletin sent out by the Bureau to its members telling of its work, expenditures, etc., and many other attractive propositions. Five hundred copies of the magazine will be sent each month to various resorts, information bureaus and other places over the country. Every member in business will be represented free of charge in a classified business directory in the magazine which will show the visitors where to buy while in various communities.

The plan will be financed by its membership. Every business house will be canvassed and the membership is but $1 a month. Of course your membership is entirely free. We just want your support to help this thing across. It is what Eastern Maine needs. California, Florida, Reno and hundreds of other places are famous because they are advertised. It is not a money making proposition. It provides salaries for myself and my assistants and the rest goes to put the thing across right.

The main office will be in Rockland with branch bureaus in every town.

I was reading a nationwide hunting and fishing magazine today and noted that nothing was said about Eastern Maine in the entire publication. Wouldn't it be nice to have an organization that would devote its time to seeing that Eastern Maine was represented in those publications. I merely state this one incident to help show just what we want to do. And then again why can't we have a famous bathing beach or two, a fisherman's race, regattas, golf tournaments, swim marathons and other enterprises of nationwide scope? We can if you folks will just get behind this little plan.

R. E. Reed

The originator of the plan has had much experience in publicity and journalistic work and is widely known over the State. He is a graduate of Rockland High School and Coburn Classical Institute and has served on staff of the Portland papers for three years. He has traveled extensively and has a fine insight on the means by which other sections of America have gained fame as recreation centers. Mr. Reed is a native of West Tremont and has resided in Rockland for nine years.

CANADA'S BIG APPLE CROP

More than 3,609,417 barrels of apples, worth $12,631,959 is Canada's estimated crop for 1929, based on figures received from crop reporters throughout the dominion. The 1929 apple production which is the largest in the last six years, will be nearly 400,000 barrels in excess of the 1928 yield when 3,235,970 barrels were picked, the bulletin sets forth. Moreover, it is 21 percent over the five-year production average of 2,985,310 barrels.

SIGN-LANGUAGE

Melville E. Stone, late head of the Associated Press, was an ardent collector of unique newspaper headlines, droll errors and unusual features of journalism. The following is one of the gems of the collection:

There is a little matter some of our subscribers have seemingly forgotten. Some of them have made up many promises but have not subscribed to them. To us it is a very important proposition—it is necessary in our business. We are very modest and hesitate to speak about such remissness.—Los Angeles Times.

IT PRAISES PHILCO

Conservative Musical Publication Has Kind Words For Famous Radio Set

"Everybody interested in radio is jubilant that the last barriers against public acceptance of radio are falling," declared F. W. Farrel, radio dealer. "Only a few years ago" he said, "many prominent musicians refused to agree that radio reproduction was real music. Now comes the ultra-conservative Musical Leader in an editorial in its June, 1929 issue as follows:

"We are gradually inclining to the belief that music 'over the air' will eventually lead American musical progress. It has taken some time for us to become converted to the idea, but wandering around the radio convention now in Chicago, we heard some remarkable reception and it was borne in our consciousness that marvelous improvements had been made. It was our privilege to see and hear the latest Philco radios and found in them the quality of reception for which we had hoped since the miracle of radio. Through this electro-dynamic speaker we really heard for the first time in our experience a gorgeous piano tone transmitted, and the resonance as well as singing quality came over the air as beautifully as it would in a concert hall. A noted baritone sang splendidly, and the orchestra gave every gradation of tone registering as clearly as in the auditorium. No matter how vibrant or how deep voiced, every tonal variance comes through the Philco to perfection.

"This editorial," Mr. Farrel said, "is fairly expressive of today's opinion of the highest type of musician and music critic and marks that the time has arrived when radio has taken its rightful place in the higher musical circles of this and foreign countries."—adv.

WHAT PUBLICITY DOES

Mellie Dunham is going to Florida! Harry A. Packard writing in the Press-Herald tells of the monster contest to be held in Miami to decide the supremacy between Southern wielders of the resined bow is being arranged and Mellie is to be the stellar attraction and goes on to say that Mellie is just as sweet as any white-haired patriarch the State of Maine ever turned out! He is willing it should be known that he is "going to Florida with all expenses paid and wages beside," and is willing that it be known he is to play at the fiddlers' contest. "But I am the contest and not in it," Mellie declares. "I've had no end of challenges since I fiddled for Ford and many an old-timer sets up that he is a better old-time fiddler than I am; I don't dispute them, but I do not accept any challenges or get into any contests.

Taking the 1928 accident figures, the risk of any given passenger on British Railways being killed is in fact a 36,000,000 to one chance. In other words, an ordinary passenger making two journeys a day six days a week would have to travel for 59,900 years before meeting his chance of being killed.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Charles W. Sheldon.

TENANT'S HARBOR DAYS

I saw a picture lately of Abraham Lincoln without a beard. Looking at it I could see in my mind one of the characters at the Harbor in my boyhood days—Uncle Ad. Keen. Any living Harbortite of that day can see him as plainly as I do—about six feet six inches tall, seemingly all bone and sinew, very little flesh. He was very deaf, but how he could saw wood. He would start out in the morning with saw and saw-horse for the job of cutting cord-wood for some resident of the village. Just how many cords he could saw—two cuts—I will not attempt to state, but he could saw a lot of it.

I heard one of our schoolmasters of those far-off days say, "I cannot tell you off-hand how many cubic feet there are in a cord of wood." He never saw a cord of wood in his life. His education was faulty, although he was a college graduate.

I know that there were 384 cubic feet in every cord of rock maple, hornbeam and oak that Dad bought and which I had to saw—in this spite of the fact that there are only 128 cubic feet in a cord of four-foot wood. Every boy who had to saw any of the above mentioned products of the forest will bear me out in that statement. What a life—sawing wood for a living!

My wife cannot understand why I get so peeved when she suggests that I saw up some of the wooden boxes in the cellar. But the reason is plain enough.

Memories, memories of the days of long ago. Memories, memories of the days when I saved a lot of money!

HOPE

Schools opened last week with Mrs. Evelyn F. Brown teaching at the Corner, Miss Ellen Thurlow at North Hope and Miss Winifred Burckett in the Payson district.

The usual slump attending the departure of summer guests is noticed and with it came rather disagreeable weather. However, there are the family reunions, great and small and the fall fairs in the offing with favorable prospects to help carry on.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bryant and family party of Waltham, Mass., were callers recently at L. A. Weaver's. Edward True who has been visiting relatives here since the closing of Hatchet Mountain Camp for Boys, of which he was a member, returned Saturday to his home in Hyde Park, Mass.

Miss Mary Bills has resumed her duties as instructor in Castine Normal School. With relatives she spent the summer at the Bills homestead.

Work has begun on the State road under the direction of T. B. Noyes.

Mrs. Kelley and Miss MacIverne of Rockland, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hardy.

The Grange picnic scheduled for last Sunday was postponed on account of inclement weather. If favorable next Sunday, everybody is invited to a basket picnic and good time at South China.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wellman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Childs and daughters were at Mrs. Eleanor Payson's Sunday.

Mrs. Nellie Wilkins of Rockport is visiting Mrs. W. K. Robbins and Mrs. Adella Goding.

Mrs. Herbert Knowlton and her mother of Rockland are staying in the Bicknell cottage at Head-of-the-Lake.

Rev. Mr. Butler and family have returned to their home in Somerville, Mass.

SIMONTON

Mrs. R. F. Gilley and son Roy of Hartford, Conn., have returned home after an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Leroy French.

Lewis, Charles and George Russell of Boston have been visiting their aunt Mrs. Leroy French.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Higgins of Augusta called on relatives, attended the fair, and were loud in their praises of coffee served with the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Higgins were at Cedar Crest Cabins, Camden while in Knox county.

Simonton folk are highly appreciative of the courtesies extended by John Bird Co. and others during the recent fair.

Miss Sara Simonton, who has entered Knox General Hospital to train for a nurse, was calling on her parents and friends Sunday.

Miss Elinor and Master George Walmsley, of Bangor have been the guests of their grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Buzzell.

The Camden Boys' Band was a very pleasing feature at the Fair. Compliments were in order for their fine appearance and music rendered. The director Clarence Fish, must be very proud of their remarkable advancement.

Mrs. Lawrence Miller has returned to Cumberland Center to resume teaching school. Her mother Mrs. Della Annis, is her guest indefinitely.

Mrs. J. C. Melvin was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Melvin of Rockland on a motor trip to Bingham and Gulf Island recently.

BURKETTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Esancy spent Sunday at Stanley Jones' in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoyt of North Chelmsford, Mass., spent Saturday with Mrs. Rosetha Rokes.

Mrs. Smith was in Rockland Saturday afternoon to visit her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Maddocks.

Mrs. Nettie Grinnell has been helping Mrs. Fred Ludwick in Washington the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cameron and son of Union were visitors Sunday at Nelson Calderwood's.

Henry Turner has returned to his work in Bangor, Me., after spending the summer at home.

Mrs. Ada Mitchell is in Union caring for Mrs. Earl Butler and infant son.

The New York State Grange awards a prize every year to the subordinate unit which makes the largest percentage of membership gain during the year and for 1928 the beautiful State Grange silk flag was won by Clarendon Grange, No. 1083, in Orleans County, which made one of the most remarkable records of growth in the history of the Grange organization. This Grange started the year with 13 members and gained 96 new ones, equivalent to a 738 per cent increase. It is doubtful if any other local lodge unit of any sort can show such a gain for the year.

Records Of Byrd Expedition Are Assured For Posterity

Permanent Rag Paper Being Used to Write Story of Antarctica

COUNTLESS expeditions in the interest of both science and conquest have penetrated uncharted corners of the globe and have emerged with tales of heroism and hardship. Few have ever presented the world with lasting records of their adventures written by campfire light to endure for generations to come.

Now for the first time in the history of Arctic or Antarctic exploration this is being done. Down on the edge of the great ice barrier that forms the outer rim of Antarctica's polar field, Commander Byrd and his valiant band are daily recording scientific data that will paint graphically a word picture of their discoveries.

The descent of six months' night has already afforded opportunity for observations that will be of inestimable value to science. Every memorandum, every record is being typed with meticulous care on the highest grade of paper available to-day, a grade that will keep alive for posterity the first-hand chronicle of their exploits.

Consults Paper Experts At the outset Commander Byrd resolved not to waste hours in transcribing valuable records that in a few years would deteriorate beyond recognition. The foremost experts in the country were consulted and on the advice of S. L. Willson, president of the American Writing Paper Company, 40,000 sheets of a high-grade, standard weight bond, and 40,000 sheets of a lighter grade of bond paper for carbon copies, were stored on board the supply ship. All of this paper is full rag content, having unusually high resistance to deterioration.

This forethought on the part of the expedition's skipper assures, according to experts, a permanent record of his findings and observations that will be a scientific treasure trove for many years. Commander Byrd's log and even important radio messages are being preserved in original form on permanent paper of rag fibre. Unlike wood pulp paper, which reacts to changing temperatures, deteriorates and finally oxidizes into powder, the rag fibre endures for generations. Some idea of this can be obtained by comparing the files of newspapers only three or four years old with the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution itself.

THE STORY OF APPLETON

As Told At Centennial Celebration, Aug. 21, By the Historian, J. Asbury Pitman, of Salem, Mass.

(Sixth Installment)

The first volume of the records of the plantation and the town contains a copy of the proclamation announcing the admission of Maine to the Union as an independent State. The act of admission was passed by Congress March 3, 1820; became effective March 15; and the proclamation, signed by William King, President of the Convention and later Governor of the State, was issued the following day.

Previously, on the 6th of December, the inhabitants of the Plantation of Appleton assembled and ratified the action of the Constitutional Convention. It was now a part of an independent State, but, as a plantation, and for seven years after it became a town, it was included in the County of Lincoln, which received its name from Lincoln County, England, the home of Thomas Leverett, one of the original proprietors.

In 1827, the County of Waldo, named for General Waldo, came into existence, being made up of portions of Lincoln, Kennebec and Hancock Counties. Appleton was included in the portion set off from Lincoln County.

Again, in 1860, and named for General Knox, a new County was incorporated, and Appleton became a part of Knox County. Not only have there been changes in the counties of which Appleton has been an integral part, but there have been changes in town lines as well. It has been said that Milton Robbins, great-grandfather of Mrs. Joshua T. McCarrison, that he had lived in both Massachusetts and Maine; in the counties of Lincoln, Waldo and Knox; and in the towns of Union, Hope and Appleton, to say nothing of the plantations; and that he was born, lived and died in the same house, from which he had probably never been farther away than Rockland.

Although but a small town, Appleton has never been found wanting whenever a call has come for patriotic service. She has given freely of her men and generously of her material resources. Exact facts and figures are not available, but the records of the town speak eloquently of her attitude toward all matters of public defence from the time of the second war with Great Britain down to the recent dark days of the recent war waged for the freedom of mankind.

There are no statistics at hand to tell us how many of our men served in the War of 1812, but it is certain that there were several who were enrolled in the coast guard. In 1814, the town voted to give the militia which are drafted $6 a month besides what the State allowed them, and raised $50 for this purpose. This bounty was continued for four years, when it was voted to stop the extra wages allowed the detached militia.

During this war, on two occasions, at least, it was voted that the plantation should be stocked with powder and ball according to law, and that the money which was due from non-residents should be laid out for this purpose. Again it was voted that the plantation should be provided with "balls, flint and camp kettles, but that no magazine should be built for the powder." A company of infantry was equipped and maintained.

Appleton was quick to respond to the call of the Government in '61. It is easy to infer from the records that when the news came that Sumpter had been fired upon, her sons hastened to enlist. At the very beginning of 1862, the town voted to leave the soldiers' families in the care of the selectmen; and throughout the war, liberal appropriations were made for this purpose. The selectmen in these trying times were Andrew H. Wentworth, Oliver R. Butler and Gustavus M. Kenniston, and well did they discharge their duties.

..... In the spring of '62, the limits from which each of two companies of soldiers should be drawn were determined, the Ridge Road and the County Road from Cutler's Mill to the Senebec Pond being the dividing line. In July, a liberal sum of money was raised to pay a bounty of $100 to each soldier who should enlist or volunteer to fill the town's quota, the same to be paid on his acceptance and being mustered into the service of the United States.

Special town meetings were of frequent occurrence. In August, the voters met to see what sum of money the town should raise to individuals who may fill the quota in respect to the orders of the President to raise by draft 300,000 men. On motion of Chester B. Sumner, it was voted to raise $100 for each soldier who should enlist, and $2,000 was appropriated. An initial payment of $70 was to be made to each soldier upon acceptance, and $30 to his family. At this meeting, Henry A. McLain was elected constable in place of Thomas G. Messer who had enlisted and gone into the army.

Again, in November, 1863, $6,000 was raised for bounties in consequence of the second call of the President for 300,000 men. "We are coming, Father Abraham, three hundred thousand strong!" The bounty was raised to as high a figure as $300, but before the close of the war, as call after call came from the President, with an additional sum of $150 each on account of substitutes. The sum of $27 was paid to recruiting officers for each man mustered into the service. Immediately after the close of the war, the town voted to leave to the selectmen the settlement of the claims of Samuel I. Thomas, Almon Gushue, and Ambrose Gushue for recruiting men.

..... It is impossible to give exact figures of the cost of the war to Appleton, but, judging from town records, fully as much money was appropriated annually for this purpose as for all other expenses. Neither are facts at hand concerning the number of enlisted men furnished nor of the losses to the man power of the town; but many of us are old enough to know in a personal way that there were few, if any, families in the entire town that were not called to mourn the loss of members who gave their lives that the Union might endure; and we are familiar with many individual sacrifices and with wounds inflicted by the war for the preservation of the Union which have never healed.

In the World War, as in previous wars, Appleton had her full share; and the sacrifices, although comparatively few, were quite as great as those of the Civil War.

At the close of the first century of the existence of the plantation there had been a substantial increase in the population. This is given as 839 in 1837; and, judging from the 317 votes cast for Governor following the annexation of Hope, there must have been a population of at least 1,500 in 1844. The high water mark was reached in 1850, the census in that year indicating that we had a population of 1,727. Then came the turn of the tide setting, naturally enough, in the direction of the mother State of Massachusetts with her common history, common ties of blood, and her larger opportunities. Today there are in that State, alone, half as many natives of Appleton as are now living in the town that gave them all birth.

..... From 1860, by decades, the population was 1,573; 1,485; 1,348; and, in 1890, 1,080. And it has slowly decreased since that time, until the last census showed but 532 inhabitants. From one point of view, these figures afford little encouragement; but perhaps like the work of grace in the Presbyterian church, which the pastor said consisted not in the number of members taken in, but rather in numbers that had gone out, Appleton may have been fortunate in having so many of us migrate to Massachusetts or elsewhere.

..... But, seriously, what of the future? Our plantation is of the same sturdy stock as that of our ancestors. Although our lumber and some of our other material resources have been greatly reduced, there are still many as yet undeveloped opportunities for

Vatican Doors Are Opened Again

Swiss guards swinging wide the huge bronze doors of the Vatican in Rome, after the signing of the pact with the Italian government. These doors had not been opened for 59 years.

Industrious, thrifty and ambitious young men and women. There are markets open to us of which our fathers never dreamed; and our soil is particularly well adapted to certain crops. For example, in one year recently Appleton shipped into the Boston market more strawberries than any other town on the Atlantic seaboard; for Boston receives berries from every point from Florida to Nova Scotia.

The town is beginning to rival those of Washington County in the production of blueberries. The acid in what we once considered the impoverished soil is causing it to yield a more golden harvest than it ever produced in the days of the virgin soil cultivated by our fathers. Hay, which does not now find as ready a market as gasoline, may be converted into beef, mutton and milk. Transportation facilities have been greatly improved; an abundance of labor-saving machinery is now available; the Appleton farmer has the advantages of the rural free delivery; the telephone, the radio, and practically all other modern conveniences. The schools are excellent, and our social and church privileges are what we are disposed to make them.

..... With these and numerous other advantages, it requires neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet to predict a return movement on the part of some, at least, of the descendants of the early inhabitants of the town; and with the exercise of still less imagination, we can see, at no distant time, many of our abandoned farms occupied by thrifty recent immigrants to our shores. The tides of the ocean ebb and flow twice every 24 hours. The periods of ebb of flood are exactly equal.

The first period of our history occupying three-quarters of a century, witnessed a steady influx of population, culminating in the days of the Civil War. Then began the period of ebb which has been of equal duration. We are now at low water mark. May we not confidently expect another turn of the tide which will bring again to the town that we all love a prolonged period of prosperity, in its largest and fullest sense?

..... But we are assembled here today chiefly to reflect upon the past and to do honor, as far as we may, to those courageous, patient, industrious and hopeful pioneers and their immediate successors,—your ancestors and mine,—who laid the foundations of our town under conditions which would have sorely tried the souls of weaker men and women, who have transmitted to us, we trust, their sterling character; and who have left for us examples which we well may follow. To them, on this one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the town for which they made so many and such great sacrifices, we humbly and gratefully dedicate this memorial, as a feeble expression of our appreciation of their lives and works. Here they lived and labored; loved and served; rejoiced in their prosperity and in that of their children, and mourned in their hours of adversity and affliction; here they died; and here they will rest forever. Surely "They rest from their labors, but their works do follow them."

COLOGNE TO THE BAVARIAN ALPS

I have often advised others to take the auto bus route from Cologne to the Bavarian Alps, but now I have enjoyed the two weeks' journey myself. We left Cologne on Monday, and before Tuesday we reached Bonn, the city of Beethoven, passing Drachenfels on the opposite bank of the Rhine, thence to Coblenz, with the immense equestrian statue to William I, past Ehrenbreitstein, and its fort, and the castles of Sternberg and Liebenstein, and numerous others until Mayence is reached. The third day brought us to Rothenburg, which we had time to visit well before starting for Nuremberg the next day after lunch. A whole day is spent at Munich, and then the majestic beauty of the Bavarian Alps begins, after we drove through Oberammergau, where the famous Passion Play, and Garmisch

Partenkirchen. You may forget the names of scores of beautiful mountain towns and villages, but you will never forget the castle of Neuschwanstein, or its rocky cliff over three thousand feet high, where a halt is made at the end of the eighth day. After that the journey took us to Friedrichshafen, where the Zeppelins are built, the Black Forest, Karlsruhe, Heidelberg, Mannheim and Worms, with its Luther fame. If you want a fortnight's delightful tour of Germany free from railways and all the hustle of their movement, choose these palatial autos. You see more of Germany.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

Ring Lardner Story Now Featuring—
"Illusion," Glowing Romance Next Week

"Fast Company" Paramount's version of a famous Ring Lardner story, which the camera alone can contribute to. This is a swift-moving comedy-romance containing all the brilliant humor and pathos originally injected into the story (one of the "You Know Me Al" series) by the authors, and all the additional glamor which the camera alone can contribute to a play of this delightfully thrilling type. Jack Oakie, youthful comedian who has risen to movie prominence in little more than a year, plays the blundering boastful small-town boy who makes good in "Fast Company."

Richard "Skeets" Gallagher, another comedian whose success in films is commensurate with Jack Oakie's, plays the part of Oakie's personal manager.

The original Lardner story was called "Hurry Kane." "Fast Company" is the screen version based on the original story, and Evelyn Brent and Gwen Lee as a pair of teamed actresses, provide the feminine side of the love-interest prominent throughout the unrolling of this typical romance-comedy of genuine people.

Starting Sept. 19, Buddy Rogers, Nancy Carroll and June Collyer will be seen at the Metropolitan in the principal roles of "Illusion," a glowing romance just released as an all-talking photoplay feature and one of the new Paramount show world sensations.

MANY MOTOR ACCIDENTS

A Total of 171 Reported During July—
Some of the Principal Causes

A total of 171 motor vehicle accidents were reported to the chief of the State highway police during the month of July, the first in which the new law requiring the filing and tabulation of such reports was in operation. The tabulation has just been completed.

According to the data compiled under direction of Chief J. W. Hanson, 39 of the reported accidents occurred in compact sections of towns and cities while 132 occurred in the open country. There were six fatalities and 178 persons were injured. No tabulation was made of the degrees of injury other than the accidents which caused deaths.

Causes of the accidents were listed as follows: Drunken driving, seven; reckless driving, 33; dangerous driving (operating at a speed greater than safe and proper), seven; inadequate brakes, six; glaring lights, three; passing on curve, five; passing on crest of hill, two; violation of stop sign, six; miscellaneous, 102.

It will be seen that outside of the unclassified causes, reckless driving was responsible for the greater number of accidents. The fact that only seven cases of drunken driving are listed, does not mean that there were only seven such drivers on the road, it is explained, but that only that number were involved in accidents which caused personal injury or property damage to the extent of $50 or more.

As reporters of accidents, the highway police themselves naturally scored the highest, with a total of 142. Fifteen accidents were reported by individuals, 13 by municipal police departments and one by a sheriff's department.

The new law requires that drivers who cause accidents involving personal injury or $50 property damage, must immediately report the accident to the highway police chief and may be required to make a supplemental report if desired.

UNTRAINED LEADERSHIP

"Untrained leadership is the most disastrous and costly thing in our churches," declared President Everett C. Herriek of Newton Theological Institution, Newton Centre, Mass. Referring to the Ocean Park School of Methods Dr. Herriek said that he had watched the movement since its beginning and that already the seminary is reaping its share of students who have said that their first impulse to enter the Christian ministry had come to them there.

THAT CRANBERRY SASS

The Massachusetts cranberry crop is expected to total 375,000 barrels this year. This compares with 335,000 barrels harvested last year and the average crop of 176,000 for the five years, 1924 to 1928. A lighter crop than a year ago was expected in Barnstable county while Plymouth county growers are in many instances expecting materially better crops. Dry weather is causing the crop to ripen somewhat earlier than usual.

Studebaker PRESIDENT EIGHT sets New Stock Car Record in 1929 Pikes Peak Climb!

—Adds famous Penrose Trophy to 11 world and 23 international records

A strictly stock and fully equipped Studebaker President Eight, driven by Glen Shultz, set the fastest stock car time in history to win the most arduous hill climbing contest known to motoring—the Annual Penrose Trophy Race to the summit of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above sea level!

Already holding, undisputed, more official stock car records for speed and endurance than all other makes of American cars combined, Studebaker now adds another triumph—in climbing Pikes Peak faster than any other stock car, regardless of power or price.

The Pikes Peak Climb was sanctioned, timed and checked by the American Automobile Association. A. A. A. officials followed the same procedure in selecting the winning stock model President Eight as they did previously with the strictly stock President Eight which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes. Picked at random from the Studebaker factory, The President was checked and certified as strictly stock before the race, and again after the run.*

The President Eight's record conquest of Pikes Peak is further proof of eight-cylinder performance supremacy—just as eight-cylinder popularity has been proved by Studebaker's world leadership in the sale of eights! Why wait a year to own an eight when you can own the car of tomorrow today!

You can buy a duplicate of the Pikes Peak President from any Studebaker dealer. See it—drive it—own a Studebaker champion eight at a new, low One-Price! And remember your car will be worth more a year from now—if it is an eight!

*High compression head (8 1/2 to 1) and mountain gear ratio (4.08 to 1) were used—either of which is optional and available to any Studebaker purchaser anywhere.
